Coach In Mind

How To Use — Club 2 Coach & Coach 2 Mentor

Coach In Mind runs two separate matching services: Club 2 Coach, which connects clubs with coaches, and Coach 2 Mentor, which connects coaches with mentors. One login covers both — you choose which service to use, and each is paid for separately.

Getting started. Sign up with your email and a password, and tell us what you're signing up as — a coach looking for a role, a club with a coaching role to fill, or a mentor (or "not sure yet"). Confirm your email from the message we send, then log in and complete your profile. Signing up only creates your account: coaches then press Let clubs know I'm looking, clubs press Advertise Coaching Role, and mentors set up their mentor profile, to go further.

Club 2 Coach

Club 2 Coach helps clubs advertise coaching vacancies and helps coaches find a role. Coach In Mind reviews and curates every match — there is no public browsing on either side.

If you're a club

- Press Advertise a Coaching Role and enter your requirements — competition level, age group, region, and accreditation needed.
- Buy a pack of 3 coach introductions for $100, or $60 from February to July (your advert runs 90 days). The price follows the month an introduction is made: a $60 pack covers introductions up to 31 July, and from 1 August it covers 2, or you can pay the $40 difference to keep all 3. Your club's first introduction is free — just tap "Claim free introduction" on your vacancy; anything after that is charged as normal.
- You'll get an email as soon as your vacancy is saved. It isn't live yet — it only joins matching once payment is confirmed (or a free or gifted introduction is applied).
- Once it's active, Coach In Mind reviews your vacancy and suggests the top-scoring coaches available.
- Each suggested match is reviewed before it goes live — contact details are only shared once a match is approved. When that happens you'll get an email, and the coach's name, email and mobile appear under "Coaches introduced to you" on that vacancy in your dashboard.
- Every introduction is a paid match, made the moment it's shared — it isn't a guarantee of a hire, and it isn't refunded or carried over if it doesn't work out.
- After each introduction, tell us whether it led to a hire from your own dashboard. We won't put forward another coach for that vacancy until you do — this makes sure you're never paying for coaches you don't need anymore.
- Your advert runs for 90 days from the day it goes live. If no coach has been introduced by then, your credit is returned automatically so you can re-advertise at no charge (or you can ask for a refund instead). If coaches were introduced, the advert simply ends and you can advertise again with a new credit.
- Enter your club's postcode (where the club plays). We use it to find coaches near you, and keep one postcode on record for your club. If a different postcode is entered for the same club we may check it with you.
- Pay on your advert is indicative only — enter the total for the whole season, not a weekly or per-session rate. It helps with matching but isn't an offer or a contract. Any agreement is made directly between you and the coach. "Pay negotiable" can only be ticked once you've entered a figure.

- Your advert and its introductions are for the one role advertised. Please tell us honestly after each introduction whether the role was filled. About a week after an introduction we'll email you a one-tap question; we won't offer another coach until you've answered.
- Didn't find your match, or want to tweak the ad? Use Repost on your vacancy to re-advertise with a few changes instead of starting from scratch. The original moves into your history so two live posts never compete for the same coaches.
- You can mark a vacancy as filled, delete it, or view its activity (introductions made, dates) at any time from your own dashboard.

Why a match costs what it does

A coaching vacancy rarely fails for lack of applicants — it fails because sorting the right one out of a group chat full of maybes costs more time than most committees have. Every introduction from Coach In Mind has already been checked against your accreditation, competition level, age group, region and indicative pay, so you're not meeting candidates — you're meeting a shortlist of one.
That's what the fee buys: fewer conversations, and a far better chance that the one you have is with the right coach. The match is the product, not the listing.

If you're a coach

- Sign up, then press Let clubs know I'm looking and describe the kind of role you're looking for — signing up creates your account; this step is what puts you in front of clubs.
- Choose up to two age groups (or "No preference" if you're open to any). Pay is indicative only — enter the total for the whole season, not a weekly rate — it helps with matching but isn't an offer or a contract — and "Pay negotiable" can only be ticked once you've entered a figure.
- Buy a package of 1–3 credits — or, if you're a founding coach, your free founding credit is already in your credit balance (see below). Credits never expire until you use them.
- You decide when you're looking. On Club 2 Coach, one credit = 30 days in front of clubs. Press Activate on your coach page to spend a credit and start the clock: you can be introduced to up to 3 clubs in those 30 days, and the credit ends after 30 days or at the third introduction, whichever comes first. To be shown to clubs again you activate with another credit. On Coach 2 Mentor a credit covers 60 days.
- To look for a club AND a mentor you activate both listings — one credit each. Your credits are one balance shared across both services.
- Looking for more than one kind of role? You can advertise up to two role profiles (for example head coach and assistant coach). Press + Add another role on your coach page; each role is a separate tab, uses your same personal details, and is activated separately with its own credit.
- When you take a role, press I've taken a role on that tab. Your other role then goes on hold with a warning, because holding two coaching roles at once may breach your competition rules. To keep advertising it you tick a box confirming you're responsible for that: its clock keeps counting. If you don't, its remaining time is lost, but your details are kept so you can advertise again later with a new credit.
- You'll get an email as soon as your listing is saved. It joins matching only once you activate it, and we email you a week before it ends.
- While it's active, Coach In Mind matches you against live vacancies and introduces you to your best-fitting clubs.
- When you're matched you'll get an email, and the club contact's name, email and mobile appear under "Your introductions" on your coach page — you can get in touch with them directly.
- About a week after each introduction we'll ask whether you took the role — one tap on your coach page or in the email. Please answer honestly; it helps us keep introductions fair for everyone.
- When your 30 days end (or you reach 3 introductions), buy or use another credit and activate again to be shown to clubs again.

Founding member offer

Founding coaches get one free credit while places last. It is added to your credit balance as soon as you open your coach page (Club 2 Coach or Coach 2 Mentor) — you don't need to save a listing first. Use it on either service (you choose); it can't be used on a mentor profile, and mentors and clubs don't take up one of the founding places. Press Activate whenever you're ready; the clock (30 days on Club 2 Coach, up to 3 introductions, or 60 days on Coach 2 Mentor) only starts then. Completing your profile doesn't use the credit. It's one free credit per coach, and it ends once all the founding places are taken. Clubs keep their own free first introduction.

Referral rewards (coaches)

- Every coach has a personal referral code and link on their coach page.
- When a coach you refer makes their first payment, you earn 1 free introduction. When a club you refer does, you earn 2.
- Rewards are added automatically to your paid listing, up to a maximum of 6 referral credits. You need a paid (or founding) listing to receive them — if you don't have one when the person you referred pays, no credit is given. A club can only earn one referral reward, ever. Free and gifted introductions don't count as a payment.
- New sign-ups enter your code when they create their profile, or just use your link.

Coach 2 Mentor

Coach 2 Mentor connects coaches seeking guidance with experienced mentors. Like Club 2 Coach, matching is curated by Coach In Mind rather than open browsing.

If you're a coach seeking a mentor

- Set up a profile describing what you're looking for from mentoring, and set your own personal priorities (e.g. how much specialism overlap or availability matters to you).
- Buy credits (1–3), or use your free founding credit if you are a founding coach (one per coach, across both services; it's already in your credit balance). Press Activate to spend one credit: your listing is then in matching for 60 days.
- Coach In Mind reviews and suggests mentors matched to your profile and priorities.
- Once a suggested mentor is approved, they'll be asked to accept or decline — contact details are only shared once they accept.
- If more than one mentor accepts, they all appear on your Coach 2 Mentor page. Press Choose this mentor on the one you want. Your other pending or accepted mentors are then released, so only your chosen mentor keeps a place with you.

If you're a mentor

- Set up a profile describing your background, specialisms, and availability.
- Upload evidence of your accreditation. We check every mentor before they go live (usually 1-2 business days) and email you when you're verified.
- Then choose your mentee capacity (how many coaches you can mentor at once, up to 10) — pricing scales with capacity — and pay by card. Founding mentor price: while the founding coach offer is open, your first mentee introduction is $50 instead of $100 (one per mentor; extra introductions are the normal price). The rate you charge coaches is entirely your own — Coach In Mind takes no share of it.
- When a coach is matched and approved, you'll see the request on your own dashboard and can accept or decline it.
- Once you accept, contact details are shared and you arrange things directly with the coach from there.

Credits, expiry and refunds

- Unused coach credits never expire, but a used credit does. On Club 2 Coach, one credit = 30 days in front of clubs (up to 3 introductions). When a coach presses Activate, that credit is spent and the listing is live for 30 days; it ends after 30 days or at the third introduction, whichever comes first. To be shown to clubs again, use or buy another credit. Mentors have no clock — they buy credits to advertise themselves to any coach who wants a mentor.
- Club credits belong to the advert. An advert runs 90 days, then ends unless it's filled sooner. If no coach was introduced in that time the credit is returned automatically (you can ask for a refund instead). If coaches were introduced, the credit is used and unused introductions don't carry over — to re-advertise, use a new credit.
- Refunds. Clubs: if no introduction is made in the 90 days your credit is returned automatically (it doesn't expire), or you can ask for a refund through the Support page within 45 days of our email telling you it was returned. Coaches on Club 2 Coach: if no introduction has been made in the 30 days after pressing Activate you can ask for a full refund through the Support page, from day 35 until 45 days after (Coach 2 Mentor: from day 90). This doesn't limit your rights under the Australian Consumer Law. Once at least one introduction has been made, the package is non-refundable — including any unused introductions in it.

Your details, emails and the page controls

- Your contact details. Your name, email and mobile come from My Profile and are shown (read-only, behind a frosted panel) at the top of your listing forms. To change them, update My Profile — that keeps what a club or coach sees once you're matched accurate.
- Postcode. My Profile asks for your 4-digit postcode (clubs also give their own club postcode on each vacancy). It's only used to see where people are.
- Emails you'll receive from hello@coachinmind.com.au. A confirmation when you save a listing or vacancy (it says what's still needed to activate it), and a "you've been matched" email when an introduction is approved — on Coach 2 Mentor, mentors are emailed when a coach would like their help, and both are emailed once the mentor accepts. Contact details are never put in the email itself — sign in to see them.
- Word limits. Short overviews are capped at 60 words, mentor bios at 150, goals at 100, and private notes to Coach In Mind at 100 — each box shows a live word count.
- Accreditation evidence (mentors). When you choose your certificate (PDF, JPEG or PNG) a preview appears so you can check it's the right file before you save.
- View and text size. Every Club 2 Coach and Coach 2 Mentor page has a Phone / Tablet / Laptop switch and S / M / L / XL text sizes at the top right. They're remembered on your device.

What to expect from matching

Coach In Mind uses a scoring system (accreditation, competition level, age group, geography, indicative pay, and more) to rank potential matches — but every introduction is reviewed before it's shared.

An introduction is a starting point, not a guarantee. What happens after you're introduced — interviews, trial sessions, agreeing terms — is between you and the other party.

If your matches aren't landing, you can update your own criteria at any time and Coach In Mind will reassess against your new details.

Reading a match percentage

A match score isn't a school grade — very few matches hit the high 90s, since it takes every factor lining up at once to get there. As a rough guide: 70%+ is a strong, obvious fit; 50–70% is solid and workable; 30–50% means there are real gaps worth a closer look; and under 30% usually means several things don't line up. A lower score doesn't always mean a weak candidate — sometimes it's one specific mismatch pulling down an otherwise great fit.

Important information

Coach In Mind facilitates introductions between coaches, clubs, and mentors. It does not guarantee that any introduction will result in a coaching role, a mentoring relationship, or any particular outcome. Coach In Mind does not vet, verify, or take responsibility for the accuracy of information provided by users, and takes no responsibility for the conduct, decisions, or outcomes of any coach, club, or mentor using the service. It is the responsibility of each party to verify the other's credentials, references, and suitability before entering into any coaching or mentoring arrangement.

Working with Children: where a coaching role involves working with children or young people, it is the responsibility of the club and the coach to ensure all relevant Working With Children Check (WWCC) and safeguarding requirements are met. Coach In Mind does not verify WWCC status as part of its matching process.
